Business League in Convention Here Bravery of Colored Strike Breakers in Chicago-Booker T. Washington Reclected President-Closing Banquet.

The sixth annual convention of the National Negro Business League hell its concluding sessions yesterday in the Palm Garden, Fifty-eighth street and Lexington avenue. Booker T. Washington presided. S. Laing Williams of Chicago delivered an address on "The Chicago Strike and Negro Labor," which put the negro strike breakers there in a new light. He said: "The employment of several hundred colored men to take the places of union teamsters in the recent Chicago strike came at a time when the air was full of violence and crime. The negro was greeted with a storm of resistance and angry protest that required iron nerve to withstand.

It was said that thousands of negroes were being shipped in, recruited from the criminal classes of the South. Now, just 100 of the 6,000 strike breakers were negroes and their conduct proved that they were neither criminals nor cowards. As soon as they reached Chicago a test was made of their strength of character in one of the most spectacular and dramatic scenes ever witnessed on the streets of an American

"Under the leadership of Curry, the champion strike breaker, they paraded the streets of Chicago with no weapons but walking sticks. Every street was thronged with a turbulent mass of angry men, women and children. Curses and threats were roared at them by thousands. From roofs and alleys stones, shoes and bricks were hurled upon their heads. The scene of disorder was beyond description. Yet these men, considered cowards, marched on into the face of violence and perhaps death with no signs of fear. When they struck, it was always in self-defense. They were called brutes, but they were showing them selves to be men, even in the face of threatselves to be men, even in the lace of American history, outside of actual war, was there ever a more trying test of manhood in that displayed by these black heroes.
As regards the complaint that the negro-porer is worse off in Chicago after the like than before, the whole question of strike than before, the whole question of our relationship to organized labor should receive special study. We should work in harmony with the best forces at work to exalt the condition of the American workman. Not only as professional and siness men, but as workmen, with or without tools, must we win our way to the confidence and respect of the American of the negroes as sympathetic to their aspirations. He said:

John Wanamaker gave an address that was as frank in regard to the shortcomings of the negroes as sympathetic to their aspirations. He said:

I fear you will be disappointed if you expect an address. I came to make a visit to see what kind of people are becoming the business men of the country. You are beginning at the best time America has ever had, and America is watching closely to measure your capacity for citizenship and your right to walk alorg with other men.

The name of your league is an indictment of any expectation of progress by chance, favoritism or sympathy. You can't afford any longer to be the ward of the nation, to be paid for any service in the war, to be considered for any service in the war, to be considered for any service in the war, to be you have.

The great dream that you were to be lifted and carried has been exploded. You are like the man who was kicked by a mule: You're not, quite so handsome, but you've learned a great deal. I want to voice a deep conviction that success or failure is not a matter of race, face or place. It is a matter of grace. The saine grace of God which gives the white, man a sense of what education, truth, honer, does for him, that's just as much yours as if while I speak to you your faces should be turned white.

I can remember the names of honored colored business men in Philadelphia. Many of them lost their husinesses before they passed away. How did they lose them? Because the Swiss, the German, and others who were Americans did that same business better than they did. Their color had nothing to do with it.

James Morgan, 78 years old, founder and former president of the Aeolian Company of Manhattan, who disappeared on Wednes day morning from the country home of Jackson Nichol, his son-in-law, at Bay Shore I. I., with a Scotch terrier as his companion, was found at 5:30 o'clock yesterday morning at the Hamilton avenue ferry house in Brooklyn by his son Robert Morgan.

The old man was wandering aimlessly ound the ferryhouse when discovered The terrier was also recovered by young Mr. Morgan from an Italian, who was apparently trying to lure the faithful dog from his bewildered master.

Mr. Morgan was taken in a coach to his home at 223 Ninth street, Brooklyn. The old man was immediately put to bed and in a few minutes was in a sound slumber. He will be taken back to Bay Shore to-day.

It was Mr. Morgan's notion when he left he was in Scotland and that Brooklyn was America. When he boarded an early train for Brooklyn he told the conductor he wanted to go to America. When the train reached Babylon the conductor, not knowing him, put the old man off the train as he had not appear to reach the fare to had not enough money to pay the fare to

At Babylon the overseer of the poor, who, like Mr. Morgan, is a Mason, gave him $1.50, and the old man took the train which reached Brooklyn on Wednesday evening. On Wednesday night he stopped at the Commercial Hotel, in lower Fulton street, and left at 8 o'clock on Thursday morning. It is supposed that he had been wandering from that time until found by his son. Mr. Morgan has never completely recovered from an attack of pneumonia two years ago and is suffering from falling memory. ago and is suffering from failing memory. This was his first disappearance.

GOSSIP OF WALL STREET.

bullish on Great Northern than on Northern Pacific. When Great Northern was selling around 200 recently, with Northern Pacific at 190, there was aggressive buying of both stocks by friends of Mr. Hill. Since then Great Northern has advanced $35 a share and Northern Pacific $25. But the advance in Northern Pacific has apparently been checked above 215 by offerings of long stock. thile the buying of Great Northern continues o be aggressive. Northern Pacific has been dvanced from 165 to 215 on its earnings and its half ownership in the Burlington. understood that the Burlington joint is will e called next year, and that the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern will thereafter hare in the greatly increased revenues of the Burlington. The value of Northern interest in the Burlington, can be approxinated. But Northern Pacific has no interes in the property which has made Great North a share—the iron ore lands in the Lake Supe Northern shares has been due to the increase in the road's earnings, some to the half in-terest in the Burlington's surplus earnings. but most to the probability of an early lease of the ore lands to the Steel corporation.

Northern Pacific was put into the Norther at 215, an advance of just $100 a share. Grea 325, an advance of $145.

The two point break in Union Pacific from its top figure of Thursday gave the tone to the entire market. While no explanations were needed to account for the reaction in the stock after its almost uninterrupted rise from 131 to 13714, the rumors of a deadlock at Portsmouth, the marking up of call money from 2 to 214 per cent. and the large loss of cash the crops were all factors that were sufficient in themselves to account for a temporary halt in the advance. The decline in Union Pacific orders around 1361/4. The traders discovered that the stock was vulnerable between 136 and 137, and in the absence of further buying sharn advance they went in to hammer the 136 Those who watched the trading in the stock on the floor at the opening said that the selling looked as good as the buying and that it was an even gamble whether the stock should be bought or sold.

Northern Securities made a new high record on the curb at 190%. The amount of stock left to trade in is so small that it is a simple matter to mark the stock up. It is understood that it is the intention to make t sell at 200 before it leaves the market. It will be something to record in the history of American railway finance that a $400,000,000 corporation which was forced out of existence by the courts had a market valuation of $800,000,000 within four years after its

A large professional bull account has been built up in Steel common.

There was a curious incident in the manipulation of Locomotive common yesterday morning. The stock was sold up to 56% soon after the opening. It then sagged down to 54%. The specialist had a collection of small stop orders but no supporting orders. One of the room traders, happening by, asked what the market was. The specialist had to report that he was on the lookout for buyers. He had 1,700 shares to sell on stop orders. "Make me an offer," said the specialist. "53½ for a thousand," the trader bid. The specialist sold him the thousand at a decline of 1% from the previous sale. After this transaction supporting orders came in and the stock was bid up to 5414. The preferred stock, in a very narrow market, was advanced at one time during the day to 119%, a new high record on this movement. The highest price it ever sold was 122% in April.

New England getting in touch with country bankers tells this story: "Whenever I strike a new town I spend what leisure time I have In Bennington, Vt., I made inquiries about monument to him in the cemetery and I went t out. I knew Fisk very well years ago and I took a great deal of interest in exmining the monument when I found it. came aware that a man was coming up be-hind me cryng, 'Here, get out of there.' When ne arrived breathless, I inquired what the trouble was. He appeared to be a worker in the cemetery. 'Are you another one of them Wall Street fellers?' he asked, looking me over suspiciously. 'They've been comin' up here year after year to look at this monuent of Jim Fisk, and they have been carryin' off pieces of it. You see there, half the s off that angel's foot, and part of her harp is gone. And the other angel is losin' all her toes. These Wall Street fellers take these toes away as souvenirs, and if we didn't keep watch they would take the whole monument down to New York.' I explained that was there only out of respect and that 1 wouldn't think of mutilating the angels. But the man didn't leave me until 1 had

It is noteworthy of yesterday's reaction that it was more even than have been the advances for several days. Standard stocks which did not advance in sympathy with Union Pacific on Wednesday and Thursday eacted with the market leader when it sold off. St. Paul lost 1%, Southern Pacific, 1%; tchison, 1%; Steel preferred 1%; Northwest, 34. Pennsylvania and Reading, which were the strongest features of the market in the morning, each making a new high record on this advance, sold off a point from their best figures. But Pennsylvania's loss for the day was only %, while Reading gained %. In the morning it was freely predicted that Reading would sell at 113% before the close. This figure was reached before the afternoon

Long Island advanced 7 points to 70 on purchases of a few hundred shares.

The bull crowd in cotton-or, to be more accurate, the bull crowds in cotton—are very confident of their position and are looking forward to a sensational campaign, like that when Sully was in command of the bull forces There is a very heavy short account in the market, made up not only of operators who pelieve that the crop is much underestimated out of cotton bulls who sold out on the recent advance above 11 cents and went short of the market preparatory to loading up again below 10 cents. Those who are bulling coton think that there is a short interest of some (0),000 bales and that after a rise of a cent or two this short interest will be stampeded. Probably in no other market is the personal equation so large a factor in speculation as in cotton. The last big bull cam-paign was all Sully. In this campaign until recently Price was the chief figure. eculator in stocks who turns his attention to cotton finds he is on a chartless sea. His speculation must be guided not by facts regarding the cotton crop and its distribution but by the plunging operations of the big operators. In the Sully campaign Wall Street speculators went short of cotton simon the idea that Sully must topple off his throne some day.

Wall Street is not so much concerned over superficial observer might be led to believe.

The rumor mongers within the last few days have had Mr. Hill buying control of the Erie, the Wisconsin Central, the Great Western, the Pacific Coast and the Union Pacific. If Mr. Hill were attempting to gather into the Hill fold all the unattached railway properties in the country the ap-pearance of the stock market would be very much different. Mr. Hill has a big railway problem before him in the management of the Great Northern, the Northern Pacific and the Burlington, and it is to be doubted that he is looking for any new roads.

Heath and Reliance had seen Jacob M. Heath and Reliance had seen the smoke signal ten miles away and headed for it, getting there just in time to save the crew from leaving in the yawl. Streams from the Heath and Reliance soon had the fire subdued, and the Stella was towed inside the Hook to be pumped out before being brought here for repairs.
